Dear Sirs:

Sour grapes, Microsoft has done more to make computers useful to the common man than all the other companies put together. The trial is over, let's move forward on important issues like getting broadband into every home and business. I don't use all Microsoft products I do have a choice. However I do not have a choice for the phone lines coming to my house. Bellsouth is a monopoly in my neighborhood with no intension of providing hardware capable of supporting DSL or even a 56K modem. We live in a dynamic world; let's focus on the issues that limit our progress and productivity and that hasn't been Microsoft for a long time!

Sincerely

Richard Kirchofer
